3 Things to note

- The first year graduate students should take measures to improve the class efficiency.
- In the learning process, we must be strict with ourselves. Set goals and take feasible measures. For example, if you want to get a scholarship, you should make a specific plan.
- Thirst for knowledge is an indispensable part in scientific research. In the work, we have to use the brain thinking to improve work efficiency.
- Students, who have the similar research direction, should strengthen exchanges with each other. Communication and cooperation can help us make progress together.

- If you find some information which are useful to others, please tell them. Help others, and then you will get the help of others.
- In the study of a new field, speak your mind, and don't be afraid of mistakes.

4 Tasks in the next week

- The next meeting will be hosted by Wei Tengda.
